MUTUAL INSURANCE COMPANY.

THE cost of Insurance on the mutual plan is but a small sum, compared with a joint stock Company. This Company being located in the Western part of the State, consequently much the larger portion of the risks are in the West, very many of which are in the country. The Company is entirely free from debt; have made no assessments, and have a very large amount in cash and good bonds, and is therefore confidently recommended to the public.

At the last Annual Meeting the following Officers were elected for the ensuing year: James Sloan, President; S. G. Coffin, Vice President; C. P. Mendenhall, Attorney; Peter Adams, Secretary and Treasurer; W. H. Cunningham, General Agent.

Opening of the Gaston and Raleigh Railroad.

[Correspondence of the Baltimore Sun.]

RALEIGH, N. C., April 20th.

Trip from Portsmouth to Raleigh.—Description of the Country.—Raleigh.—Reception.—Banquet, &c.

The excursionists left Portsmouth, Va., at half-past 7 o'clock yesterday morning, in an extra train, being accompanied by the Marine Band from the U. S. receiving ship Pennsylvania, and the members of the Common Council of Norfolk and Portsmouth, and other distinguished citizens. Ex President John Tyler also joined the party and made one of the company. Passing out of Portsmouth, with flags flying and the band playing, we were soon speedily on our way over the Seaboard and Roanoke Railroad, towards Weldon, N. C. The road is an exceedingly level one, passing through a portion of the Dismal Swamp, a country covered with stunted pine and a thick growsh of small bushes, rendering many places impenetrable to man and the larger kinds of animals. Vegetation was in a more forward state by several weeks than in and around Baltimore, and notwithstanding the barrenness of the soil, presented a spring-like and inviting aspect. There is very little improvement over any portion of this road for the first twenty miles, the land being exceedingly barren and unproductive.

A few miles from Portsmouth the following invitation was handed to each of the excurtionists:

"RALEIGH, April 14th, 1853.

The undersigned, a committee on behalf of the citizens of Raleigh, take great pleasure in extending to you the hospitalities of our city, and respectfully request your presence at a supper to be given on Tuesday, 19th inst, at the Yarbrough House.

(Signed,) William D. Cooke, William R. Scott, William W. Holden, Seaton Gales, Wm. Thompson, Lyttleton Waddell, jr., W. Whitaker, jr., Jno. C. Partridge, J. B. G. Roulhac, W. H. H. Tucker, E. Yarbrough, sr., James Litchford, L. W. Peck, J. J. Biggs, J. I. W. Tucker, J. G. Williams, A. M. McPheeters, K. W. Petersillia, James Puttick, W. W. Vass, James D. Nunn."

This was, of course, accepted nem. con., each one anticipating the pleasure to be enjoyed at the festive board. We arrived at Suffolk, Va., a distance of seventeen miles from Portsmouth, in about forty minutes, the train proceeding at a slower rate than usual. We only remained at this little village a minute or two, and then sped on our way. From Suffolk up towards Weldon the country has a somewhat better appearance, the pine timber being larger, and the land, in several localities, rather better tilled. The wood is nearly all pine, very little oak or other kinds being seen on the route.

We arrived at Black Water river, thirty-seven miles from Portsmouth, at 9 o'clock, and here found two small steamers lying just below the railroad bridge, tied to trees on shore, the stream being about forty feet wide, and presenting the anomaly of being some twenty feet deep. The steamers looked like they were in the woods, but the depth of the water enables them to ply regularly from this head of navigation to Edenton and Plymouth, N. C.—the one 80 and the other over 100 miles down from the spot. The river contains fish, and the hands on one of the steamers were engaged, as we passed, in cutting up a very large sturgeon they had just caught. The ground-nut merchants—old "dilapidated" women and sallow-complected, ghostly looking girls—brought a supply of this staple to the cars, and the excursionists laid in a quantity for the route. Some few had knit stockings, which they found purchasers for at fair prices. A more dejected, forlorn, sickly set of females I never laid eyes on in any locality. The swamps cause so much disease that health is almost unknown to the inhabitants.

We soon passed the Virginia line, and were on the soil of the old North State, and rapidly going through an uninviting country, so far as regards improvements, reached Weldon at 11 o'clock. This head-quarters of chills, fevers and bilious diseases, is 80 miles from Portsmouth, and is only noted as being the focus from which radiates several railroads—the Wilmington, the Gaston, the Roanoke, and the Petersburg. We crossed the Roanoke river just before we reached the village, only remaining a few minutes, started up the Weldon and Gaston railroad—the new connecting link between the Seaboard and Roanoke road—the completion of which we were principally proceeding to celebrate. From Weldon we passed over the new road, which is 14 miles long, and found it built very substantially, being all laid with heavy T rail. At different intervals, the Irish laborers employed in its construction were seen apparently much elated at the finishing of the enterprise. No matter in what section of the Union—North, South, East or West—where the railroad is to be built, or the canal dug, the hard working sons of the Emerald Isle are called upon to expend their time and labor—they are the physical internal improvement men of the day.

From Weldon to Gaston, the country is more rolling and hilly, and of better quality, the oak, sycamore, dog-wood, &c., beginning to show itself in the place of the almost interminable pine. The new road passes along the south bank of the Roanoke river a considerable portion of the distance, the river being deep and wide. Opposite Gaston, (a very pretty village on the north bank, said to be one of the most sickly places in the whole country,) we turned off, and on to the Gaston and Raleigh railroad, which connects with Gaston by a long bridge over the Roanoke. We sped on up the Raleigh road and found the country getting more and more rough, rolling and hilly, and now and then a very fine farm would show itself. Generally, however, the land was very, very poor. The Raleigh road is 86 miles from Gaston to the capitol of North Carolina. Several handsome little villages on the line of the road. Ridgeway, in the county of Warren, is an oasis in this barren land. We soon reached Henderson, another smart village, (at 20 minutes past 2 o'clock,) 42 miles east of Raleigh, where we dined; Messrs. J. B. Debnen, and other hotel proprietors, setting out the best their larders afforded, and the excursionists, now swelled to over two hundred, doing the edibles full justice. At ten minutes past 3 o'clock, having treated the village to the music of the band, and giving the ladies (rosy cheeked ones, in this instance,) hearty cheers, we again moved on in the wake of the iron horse.

Seven miles below Henderson we passed over a wooden bridge crossing the Tar river, which is 95 feet high from the track to the water. It appears to be a very solid structure, and is protected on each side by a parapet. Two other bridges of the same material and design were likewise passed on the road between this point and Raleigh.

Franklin, 20 miles east of Raleigh, is quite a pretty place, and attracted attention. We had a fine view also of Wake Forest, Wake county, where is located a fine old ancient looking college, known as "Wake Forest College," standing in the centre of a large grove of primeval oaks, on a mound or hill in the rear of the village. The place has an appealing, reverential appearance, as it has been a seat of learning of considerable celebrity in that section of country.

Another hour and we were within a short distance of Raleigh. About 5 o'clock, at an out water and wood station we were met by a large delegation of the citizens, who received us with enthusiastic cheers, and getting on the cars escorted us to the city. At the depot large crowds had collected to receive the guests. Here we were formed into line, and all being ready, Mayor Haywood, of Raleigh, stepped forward and welcomed the guests in a neat and pertinent speech, extending the hospitalities of the city to one and all. The Rev. Thomas Hume, on the part of the corporation of Portsmouth, J. T. Allyn, Esq., on the part of the corporation of Norfolk, and John B. Seidenstricker, Esq., on the part of the corporation of Baltimore, responded in appropriate terms, each expressing the pleasure the visit and reception afforded to themselves and those whom they represented on the occasion. Gov. Reid, of North Carolina, was present, and was introduced to the company, after which all marched into the city, and proceeded to the quarters severally provided for them.

An hour or two was spent in looking at the State House—a fine noble structure, of stone—and other public buildings, and the city generally. Raleigh was greatly admired as one of the prettiest inland cities in the country. The streets are regularly laid out, radiating from the State House, and are lined with large trees, a circumstance which has not inappropriately given it the name of "The Forest City."

I should have mentioned that among other manifestations, a salute of artillery was fired on our arrival, and every demonstration suitable to the occasion made.

THE BANQUET.

At 8 o'clock, the committee of citizens, with the Mayor, waited upon the guests and escorted them to the Yarbrough House, where a supper was in waiting for them. Ex-Gov. Manly presided, assisted by John H. Bryan, Esq., Hon. Kenneth Rayner, L. O'B. Branch, C. L. Hinton, and W. D. Haywood, Esq's., as vice presidents, and supported on the right by Ex-President Tyler, and on the left by Gov. Reid. After satisfying the inward man with the tempting viands, the cloth was removed, and the regular toasts, announced as follows, being drunk in the following bumpers of champagne:

1. The American Union.—The brightest hope of human liberty. [Loud cheers.]

2. Our Sister and Neighbor, Virginia.—The mother of a long line of illustrious sons, and beautiful and accomplished daughters; we greet their representatives in a hearty and cordial manner.

This was received with great enthusiasm, and Mr. Tyler was loudly called for to respond. He arose and said he was a son of the old Dominion, and the y regarded her as a glorious old State; wherever their foot-steps might wander, they would always return back to her with pride and pleasure. Although having this high regard for the State of their birth, Virginians had not contracted feelings, but are devoted to the interests of all the States of this confederacy. But one State is close, if not the closest to hearts of her citizens, and that is North Carolina. If Virginia produced the author of the Declaration of Independence, whereby Liberty is wafted to the four quarters of the world, North Carolina proudly holds up her head and says, "I first did support that act." If we looked to the councils of the nation at Washington, none shone more conspicuous than the representatives of the proud and erect State of North Carolina. Mr. Tyler concluded his remarks by giving, as a sentiment, the following:

The State of North Carolina—Glorious in her simplicity, and glorious in her principles.

Ex-Governor Manly being called for, remarked that the commander-in-chief of North Carolina being present, it befitted that he should reply.

Gov. Reid arose amid prolonged applause, and said that he felt the most lively emotions when he heard a compliment paid to the old North State, and more especially when it came from that old sister—the old Dominion. This union, he was glad to know, would be beneficial to North Carolina and Virginia, and he trusted that each would go on in the works of internal improvement until their great destiny was accomplished. North Carolina meets Virginia here with pride and pleasure. This railroad connection which they were celebrating to-day was an important matter to Virginia, and he trusted it would prove equally as beneficial to both States, and of no injury to none. He remarked that this was his birth-day, and a man generally felt little like making a speech on such an occasion, he therefore trusted that what had been left unsaid by him would be said by his illustrious predecessor, Ex-Gov. Manly.

Ex-Governor Manly remarked that he well knew the tactics of his friend—he had experienced their results on other occasions—and he begged leave therefore to surrender at discretion. (Laughter and cheers.) He gave the following—

The City of Petersburg—The "Cockade city of the Old Dominion."

3. The State of North Carolina—Her steam is now fairly up, and the cry from every station, "go ahead."

Mr. Branch, president of the Gaston and Raleigh railroad, responded to this sentiment, alluding to the great benefits the railway connexion just made would be to the State of North Carolina, not merely in directing trade, but as a vital improvement to this whole section of country. It would enable the people of North Carolina to reach two, instead of one market with their produce, as had been the case heretofore. He gave as a sentiment—

The Seaboard and Roanoke Railroad, and Gaston and Raleigh Railroad—They have once been one in misfortune—they are now united, and may they be one in prosperity.

Dr. Collins, president of the Seaboard and Roanoke road, responded, remarking that he looked upon the connexion of the roads which has been made as of vast importance to the whole State, and that in twelve months the benefits that would result therefrom would be perceived and felt. He gave as a sentiment—

The City of Raleigh and Seaboard of Norfolk—United by iron links, may they be more united in the bonds of friendship.

4. Portsmouth and Raleigh—Long connected by unison of feeling—now cemented by bonds of iron.

The Hon. Mr. Raynor replied to this sentiment in a very neat and pertinent speech. The visit of their friends of two sister States—Virginia and Maryland was a source of great gratification, and he cheerfully joined in rendering to them a cordial greeting to the little rural city of oaks. He rejoiced at the prospect opening to the people of his own State, for he believed this impulse given to North Carolina would prove an epoch in her history. She was now placed in the position she should have been twenty years ago, for if the Raleigh road had then been built to Weldon, instead of Gaston, far different would have been the works of internal improvement in North Carolina. Now they had two markets, instead of one; and the result would soon be seen in increased prosperity. He gave as a sentiment—

The Interior Counties of North Carolina and Portsmouth—United by interests, by the laws of nature, may they always prosper and be more closely connected in all that is necessary for the common good.

The next regular toast was announced as follows:

The City of Baltimore—Justly distinguished for the number and height of her monuments, the beauty of her women, the whole souled hospitality of her people and the unflagging enterprise of her citizens.

John B. Seidenstricker, Esq., of Baltimore, being loudly called for, made a very pertinent and eloquent speech, remarking that he felt an unusual degree of pleasure in being present on this occasion. He referred to the first project of railroads in Maryland, twenty-five years ago—the struggle and the final success. How Baltimore, from a city of 60,000 inhabitants and 40,000,000 of dollars of taxable property, had now increased to over 200,000 inhabitants and the value of her property to 100,000,000 of dollars. Railroads had done this, and he encouraged the people of North Carolina to go on, and push ahead their works of internal improvement. He trusted that Raleigh, like other inland cities, might grow in commerce and wealth, and become the pride and glory of the State. He loved to see these works of internal improvement extending, and wished to see them penetrating every crook and cranny in the land. In conclusion, he referred to the prompt and proper reply given by a distinguished lady of our land to the letter of the Duchess of Sutherland and other ladies of England, who sought to interfere with our institutions, and gave as a sentiment—

The Lady of Ex-President Tyler—The author of the reply alluded to—that production is an honor to heart, her husband and her country.

This was received with unbounded enthusiasm, and loud cheers for Mrs. Tyler.

Mr. Joshua Jones gave as a sentiment:

"I fill this cup to one made up of loveliness alone:
A woman of a gentle sex, the seeming paragon—
Mrs. John Tyler."

Mr. John H. Bryan responded appropsiately, concluding with the following toast.

The City of Baltimore—One of the noblest cities of our great Republic, renowned for arts and arms. It is praise enough to say of her that she is worthy of the noble State of Maryland.

8. Our Sister City of Petersburg—Whilst acquiring so many, let us not forget our old friends.

Dr. Smith of Petersburg, responded very pleasantly, who gave—

The Alimentary Canal—to which the citizens of Raleigh have made liberal appropriations on the present occasion.

9. The Press—Second only to steam in power.

Several responses were made to this by representations of the press from Norfolk.

10. The Fair of our Country—May they be wives to their husbands, mothers to their children, mistresses to their families, and angels in the other world.

The following toasts were also offered at different stages of the proceedings.

Dr. William Collins, President of the Seaboard and Roanoke Railroad Company—A worthy leader in the great cause of internal improvement.

Internal Improvement—The distinguished characteristic of civil from savage life; the nation that neglects the one, deserves the miseries of the other.

Railroads Generally—Nullifying distance—yet procuring union.

The Raleigh and Gaston Railroad—Under the munificent bounty of the State, it has sprung up anew, like "Phœnix from its ashes," and is destined to flourish yet more with its new "Branch."

The following was presented by Gen. A. Miltenberger, of Baltimore:

The Citizens of Raleigh—Great in their energy—great in their enterprise—great in all elements of greatness—but in nothing greater than in the unbounded hospitality with which they have given us so hearty a welcome this day.

Suitable responses were made to the above, and many other volunteer toasts were drunk. A merry time was experienced up to a late hour. The Marine band was present, and between the addresses enlivened the time with fine music. After a "good time," the company separated, highly pleased, and none more so than the Baltimoreans. J. M. P.

PORTSMOUTH, April 20, 6 P. M.

The train from Raleigh has just arrived, all safe and sound. We have been made aware that to-night the citizens of Portsmouth design giving an entertainment to the guests, the number of whom have been largely increased by a large delegation of the authorities and citizens of Raleigh. To-morrow morning they will proceed to the elegant steamer North Carolina, to visit Old Point Comfort, the Rip Raps, and other notable places about this harbor, when they will return to Norfolk, and their partake of the hospitalities of the city. This over, we will again embark on the steamer, and speed our way homeward. J. M. P.

APPOINTMENTS TO OFFICE. Some of the journals hostile to the administration and to the men selected by it for high and important public trusts, being unable to find any other fault, either in the announced policy or the executive action of the President, have engaged in the fabrication and circulation of rumors to the effect that several such appointments have not only been urged upon gentlemen selected for them, but that they have even been proffered and accepted upon conditions prescribed to the appointing power. To say that every such insinuation is, in all its parts, without the least shadow of foundation, either in fact or appearance, is only to affirm what every man of sense, be he democrat or whig, understanding anything of the character either of the President of or his cabinet, well knows to be true. But the point in the case is, that all such imputations would be, if true, and in so far as they might have any, and the slightest foundation in fact, utterly discreditable to the administration. All this the authors of such fabrications well know, and it is by reason of this knowledge that the avowed or concealed enemies of the President—and they only—resort to this most transparent and contemptible trick.

Fortunately, neither the President nor his administration require any other shield from all such insidious attacks than that which is furnished by their own position and character. The executive government of the United States, in the hands of a President, called from private life to his high station almost by the acclamation of the American people, is not likely to be reduced to the necessity of entreaty to secure the services of men amply qualified to perform all public duties. Nor is the democratic party of the country so poor in ability or accomplishment or public spirit as to make the selection of willing and competent men for all its offices a task so difficult as to require the administration to accept from any man the conditions upon which office is to be taken or held. And even if any such exigency could be imagined to exist in any department of the public service, President Pierce stands before the country well approved by all his antecedents as of all men the last to yield to any such enforcement. Unquestionably the distinguished gentlemen selected by the President for high and responsible public trusts command fully his confidence and esteem; and it is for this reason that they are selected by him to execute, under his direction and upon his responsibility, the policy of his administration, and of the great democratic party by which his administration has been placed in power. Such men, we may be well assured, would be the last to claim, or to permit others to claim, that by their selection, testifying the confidence reposed in their ability, discretion, and patriotism, the President has abdicated the control or transferred the responsibility which, under the constitution, belong to the presidency in the direction of public affairs.

Washington Union.

THE BIRTH OF ANOTHER PRINCE is the "peculiar event," that forms the topic of remark in the last English papers. Her Majesty's loyal subjects seem to be in ecstacies at this addition to the Royal household, which now numbers eight in all—four sons and four daughters. The London Times thus announces the "happy event:"

"The intelligence which it is our pleasing duty to publish this day will be received with satisfaction by the nation which has been so long happy and prosperous under the rule of Queen Victoria. At 10 minutes after 1 o'clock yesterday the Queen was delivered of a Prince in the presence of the usual officers of State. Her Majesty and the infant Prince are both doing well. It has pleased Providence to bless Queen Victoria with so numerous an issue that the event can scarcely be received as one of great political importance. The succession to the Throne was already secure in the direct line of the present Sovereign, unless, indeed, more than ordinary calamity should fall on the Royal house. But we may be permitted to hope that this fresh addition to the family of a lady as distinguished for her domestic virtues, as exalted in her station may bring with it comfort and happiness. It is a grand thing for the Monarch of this country that amidst shaken crowns and falling loyalty, she alone sits securely enthroned in the hearts of her people. The event which brings fresh happiness to her heart will be felt as a private joy by every fireside, where English is spoken, in every quarter of the habitable globe."

How particularly it is all told. The very time of day it took place, to a minute! In the "presence," too, of the usual officers of state! Then, as the New York Express says, read over again the complacent jubilation of the editor, about the "grand thing" for the monarch of that country, and say if the Times editor was not in the very best of good humor when he penned the announcement. Brother Jonathan tenders his compliments to Her Majesty on the interesting occasion, accompanied by the wish that, in her capacity as sovereign of a great nation, she will live up to every other divine injunction as well as she has to that one which bids her multiply and replenish the earth.

THE WEST. We have before us the Rutherfordton "Mountain Banner," containing the valedictory of its really talented Editor, F. I. Wilson, Esq. who proposes to unfurl his Banner on a larger field, (Salisbury,) and with ample folds, on the 1st of next month, his new paper to be called "The Republican Banner." We wish him much success in his new location, which we feel confident he will deserve. By the way, we observe several noticeable things in this last number of the Banner, which we think will amuse and interest our readers;—among the rest, the proceedings of a meeting held in Jackson county, on the 22d of March, not very important on account of the influence of those participating therein; but still, no doubt indicating the movements likely to be made in the extreme West upon the subject of Internal Improvements.

The chief actor seems to have been Mr. R. G. A. Love, the scaly democrat from Haywood in the last Legislature. The resolutions go for the extension of the Central Railroad West from Salisbury to the Little Tennessee river, in the county of Macon, so as to form a connection with the Rabun Gap Railroad, and East to Beaufort; the State to subscribe two-thirds of the capital stock which may be required to extend said Road East and West; and further assert that no one who does not support this measure for the extension of the Central Road East and West, is worthy of the support of the Democratic party in the State for any office. After the reading of the resolutions, Mr. Love made a speech, in which he attacked Gov. Reid for not coming out strong enough for this measure in his last message, and urged upon the people of the West to make this an issue in the next canvass for Governor, supporting no one who would not go for it unreservedly and immediately.

Mr. Love's position in the last Legislature won him no respect, and his attack upon Gov. Reid will not help him any; but still, from these and other indications, we believe it is evident that the people of the Western part of the State have set their minds upon the Western extension, and although Love may give no strength to any issue, his laying hold of it is a sign that it is popular, and that under its folds he wishes to hide his dereliction as a party man in the last General Assembly. Sooner or later this extension will be made, and we think good policy would dictate to us, of the Cape Fear section, to meet our Western brethren in a friendly spirit, and lend them such a hand as will convince them that we are not the grasping or churlish people that they have been taught to regard us. Wilmington Journal.

A BOSTON NOTION.

Under this caption the New York Independent gives the following interesting description of the fire alarm now in use in Boston:

Boston is a city of notions, everybody knows. America can show no other city so full of matured systems, useful contrivances and odd conveniences as this same Boston. The city maxim seems to be, that "there's a best way of doing all things." In public and in domestic affairs, the "solid men of Boston" are not content with simple achievement, but they must have achievement by the best methods.

The latest illustration of this is their scientific way of giving a fire alarm, and calling out and guiding their fire department. A very simple matter, one would thing, to raise the window sash and shout fire two or three times, and leave the alarm to spread. Every villager knows how to pull a bell rope, and ring till he's tired. Every New Yorker knows how to count the booming strokes of the big bells, as they toll off the district number. A very simplet thing! One way just as good as another, so long as a rousing alarm is startled.

By no means. These Boston men have found out a best way.

If your house takes fire, and gets past domestic control, and you feel it necessary to appeal to the municipal authorities for help, do not be at all excited or alarmed. Do not make yourself red in the face, and hoarse with shouting. Put on your ha and run to yonder corner where you see that little iron box fastened up against the wall; step into the store, ask quietly for the key, adding, "My house is on fire," by way of apology for the intrusion; now unlock the little iron door, and remembering that the longest way round is sometimes the shortest way home, obey the inscription and "turn six times slowly." Your responsibility is ended. You have done all you need do. Boston will take care of your house. Shut to the little door. Hurry home or the engines will be there before you!

Every bell in the city, and several more across the water are telling people where you live, and that your house is on fire. In other parts of the city, men with glazed hats and brass trumpets may be seen running to these same little iron boxes; they seem to whisper a moment, then they listen, and then they look very knowing, any slap the door to; and here they come all pell-mell to your help. How much time has elasped since you needed help! Perhaps three minutes. There is a best way of giving an alarm, that's a fact.

But how was it done?

That little iron box you opened was a telegraph station; you can see the wires where they come down through those two iron pipes into the box. The crank you turned is merely a contrivance that enables an experienced person to send the only message ever sent from this box—its own number. Just so a hand organ enables the grinder to play one tune well, even though he be no organist. You turned it six times. Once would have been enough, but six times over, and every time the same number, there could be no mistake. The central office knew in an instant of your distress.

Yes, but how did that make the bells ring all over the city, and East Boston too? Do they keep a sexton at every bell-rope all the time, ready to pull when any body telegraphs?

No, that would be full as bad as the New York plan of keeping watchmen up in the fire towers, on a perpetual look out. That would not be scientific enough for a "best" way. But you know a church clock strikes the hour without any help from the sexton except to wind it up. Just so the bells are rung for fire; in every steeple there is a machine like the striking of a clock. These machines will strike several hundred blows each with their heavy hammers, by being wound up once. When you sent off your despatch it went direct to a third story room on Court Square, and was read by a man whose business it is to attend to such messages. From this same room he can, by touching a key, send by another set of wires, a current of galvanism to every steeple in the city. If you look, you can see these wires entering every steeple that holds a good bell. When this galvanic current passes into the several steeples, it circulates in each around a bar of soft iron, which instantly becomes a powerful magnet strong enough to lift the detent that keeps the striking machines from running. Now these machines are made so they would strike one blow and stop, unless the magnet keeps the detent back and leaves the wheels unlocked and free to run: So this man in the little third story room by the Court House (he'll show you how it is done if you will call upon him, for he is very courteous to visitors,) can by pressing the proper knob or key, make these heavy bell hammers strike as many times as he chooses. And he made them strike the number of your ward.

But how happened the engines and firemen to come straight to my house? There are two or three thousand houses in the ward.

The foreman of every fire company has a key to those useful little iron boxes, and so when he has got to the ward signified by the bells, he runs to the nearest box, and sends a private signal to the man in Court Square, asking just where is the fire? and then he listens while the answer comes back in little taps, one, two, three, four, &c. till he learns the number of the very box you opened when you gave the alarm in the first place. Every box has its own number. The bells tolled the firemen what ward, and the telegraph taps whispered what box the alarm came from.

I see. But is it worth all this trouble of wires and machinery and boxes and batteries?

Yes, indeed. Five minutes at the beginning of a fire are very precious. But oftentimes, so rapid is this system, an alarm will be given, bells rung, boxes consulted, fire found, hose procured and screwed to a Cochituate fire plug, and the fire extinguished, ere the family in danger are well awake. Many a time, the first thing a man knows of his danger by fire, is that his room is flooded with water.

But this municipal telegraph is used for more purposes than one. In case of riot, the police captain can send for help to headquarters. To catch an absconding thief, by setting guard at every railroad and steamboat, can be done in five minutes. Then, too, very soon all the city clocks will be hitched together by these wires, and all of them go by one central pendulum, accurately, five hundred clocks alike to a second.

Go it, Boston! We shall soon hear of newer notions still. The next move will be to introduce into every first-class house city time as well as city water and city gas. Telegraphic wire will be introduced just as now the water pipes and gas fixtures are. What a millenium of punctuality! Twenty thousand clocks ticking together! Yes, and next we shall hear of a refinement of the fire system. Phillip's annihilators will be built into the walls, their nozzles just peeping out into the room. Convenient wires will be arrangd so that a man waked at midnight by the smell of fire or a red light in his room, will only need reach out his arm to the fire knob and pull it six times slowly, and instantly that wakeful, watchful, handy man on Court Square will touch his wires not to frighten sleep from all the city with his dinging bells, but quietly he'll touch the wire, and smash go the acid bottles in the ambushed annihilators; phis, squiz, tush, shush, rushes out the humid fire-destroying, life-preserving vapor. The unseasonable fire surrenders and goes out. But long ere this, the solid man has rolled himself back into bed again, tucked the blanket snug about his chin, and fallen to sleep, blessing the best, the very best, the Boston way of putting out fires.

The seven railroads forming the complete chain between Albany, Troy and Buffalo, have just been merged into one company under the title of the Central Rail Road of New York, in conformity with the provisions of an act of the Legislature authorizing the transaction. The roads thus incorporated under a single management, are thus stated in an article in the Boston Advertisor: 1. The Albany and Schenectady Rail Road; 2. The Utica and Schenectady; 4. The Syracuse and Utica; 5. The Rochester and Syracuse; 6. The Buffalo and Rochester; 7. The Rochester, Lockport and Niagara Rail Boad. A part of these lines, if we mistake not, have been constructed under double charters, and the amalgamation thus formed will throw out of employment a great number of rail road officers, and may doubtless introduce a system of greater economy and efficiency, to the essential advantage of the public. The arrangement, its general character and leading object, is similar to those of which there have been several successful examples in England. But in some respects the arrangement is of a novel character. Mr. Erastus Corning of Albany is to be the President, and Mr. Dean Richmond of Buffalo, Vice President of the new company. Richmond Enquirer.

HOW TO USE GUANO.

Guano comes in bags, and usually contains many lumps which require to be crushed into a powder, before the manure is applied to the soil. The lumps are commonly separated from the mass by a riddle or sieve, as lumps and pebbles are separated from sand in making mortar; or as grain is sometimes sifted by hand. The ammonical dust that flies off in this operation is pretty severe on the lungs and eyes of the operator, and is avoided by moistening the guano ten or twelve hours or a day before the sifting begins. The dampness should be barely sufficient to keep the dust from being diffused through the atmosphere. The lumps sifted or riddled out may be moistened a little more, and crushed as in making mortar, with the back of a hoe or shovel, on a plank floor or smooth hard ground.

For corn, it will probably pay better to put the manure in the hill or drill, than to scatter it broadcast over the ground. After the field is ready for planting, let hands take guano in buckets on their arms, and with the two fore or first fingers and thumb of each, take out a good pinch of the snuff and drop it where the corn is to be dropped, spreading the guano and covering it with a little earth, by using the foot for that purpose. The track of the manure dropper tells the corn dropper where the seed should be placed, while the earth between the guano and corn prevents the causticity of the former doing injury to the germ of the latter; which, when it begins to grow, is tender and easily killed.

The above hints apply to the use of guano in cotton culture, not less than to the planting of corn. But as cotton seed are usually scattered liberally in drills or rows, one way only, we should not hesitate to scatter in the same furrow, or marking, guano equal to 200 or 300 lbs. per acre and cover both seed and manure at one operation. A few seeds might be damaged or killed by the manure, but enough and more than enough would grow. No injury has ever resulted from sowing guano and wheat together, and the covering both with a harrow or plow.

It is only the soluble salts in guano that can injure any seed; and before the germ starts out, the salts, being at once dissolved by the damp earth, become so diffused and diluted, that no injury can be done to the young plant. If the soil is dry where the guano is placed, the result might be different. In dry summers, this hot, caustic fertilizer does more harm than good. In the Patent Office Report for 1851, the reader will find a great deal of information on this and many other important subjects, showing the best practices in farm economy. On page 252, Mr. Zook, of Pa., gives an account of sowing broadcast, 2000 lbs. of guano and 1000 of gypsum on a poor field, badly worn by 70 years' cropping containing 15 acres. The manure was sown immediately after the corn was planted, and the ground harrowed when the corn was two or three inches high. The cultivator was afterwards ran between the rows. The yield was fifty bushels per acre. This crop was made in 1848. In 1849 the field was sown in oats, and turned out over 40 bushels per acre. Mr. Z. estimates the gain from the guano and plaster, at 300 per cent., cost per acre $4 50. Mr. Mumma of the same State speaks highly of plaster used on corn, and commends the free use of lime. Of the latter he says: "So powerful is its effects on poor soil, if properly applied, that on many farms in this county where it has been used, the value of the land has been increased 200 per cent., with less than one hundred bushels per acre." Mr. Houston, of Delaware, applied 300 lbs. guano per acre, to 70 acres of wheat, in 1851. He prefers plowing it in six inches deep. He says that lime pays better than guano, taking ten years together. But he gets lime cheap, and guano is expensive every where.

His large experience induces him to say that 100 lbs. of this manure will give ten bushels of corn on poor land. Mr. Wright, a very successful farmer of Delaware, says that guano is too high for profit to the cultivator. Mr. Walsh says: "Guano is also used on our corn crop, but not to the same extent as to wheat. It adds materially to the gain of the crop; increasing it, I should think, when 300 lbs. are used, at least two-fold."

Mr. Charles Yancey, of Buckingham county, Va., says: "In the fall of 1850 I purchased ten tons of guano, plowed it under as before stated, (three inches deep,) using about 200 lbs. per acre, and seeded wheat, leaving occasional beds, not guanoed. Verily, the eye said the guanoed wheat would yield double."

We think favorably of the following practices of Mr. Y., although from the drouth last year, it was nearly a failure: "The ground when prepared was checked in squares three feet four inches; a tablespoonful of guano was scattered upon the check; the hilling closed up to prevent the escape of the ammonia; the hills were cut off four inches above and planted in May. The drought prevented the plants taking root, or bringing the guano into solution. There was no growth whatever until the 27th July, when we had rain; the growth was then in a week wonderful—the plants attained a fine size. A second drouth occurred in September and October, which protracted the ripening, and the plants faded and assumed a yellow hue." Mr. Yancey regards guano as a powerful stimulant, but too expensive for general use. Our notion is, that one may use guano to make a crop of corn at a profit, if he will make the corn pay a fair price in meat, and yield as much good manure for producing a second crop of corn and meat as the equivalent of the guano. In other words this costly commercial manure cannot be profitably purchased to grow corn for commercial purposes, but for home consumption, where all the elements of the seeds, cobs, blades and stalks may be saved as manure—the equivalent of the guano, and more too—this dung of sea birds may be brought to increase one's corn, cotton seed and lint. D. LEE.

ANOTHER BOURBON IN THE FIELD. A Montgomery, Ala., paper lately affirmed that Bocsha, the harpist and composer (who has quite Bourbon features) was the son of Egalite, Duke of Orleans, and, consequently, half brother to Louis Phillippe. Being asked if the report was true, our witty musician, who seldom loses the opportunity of a joke, answered seriously:

"It may be—indeed I have heard and seen stranger things during my long public life; but I sincerely hope that busy friends will not act too hastily in the matter, and endeavor to overthrow, for my sake, the government of the nephew of my first and revered patron, Napoleon I., as I should be obliged to decline the honor—wearing a very pleasant and safe crown."

"How is that?" replied the interrogator.

"How! My dear sir," said Bocsha, drawing himself up to his full height and breadth, "I am King of the Harp, and am recognized as the legitimate heir to King David. My Government is based on harmony and concord; my policy is to keep my instrument well in tune and please indiscriminately, Whigs and Democrats; my ministers, at home and abroad, (the music sellers and hotel keepers,) spread far and wide my fame and name; my relations with foreign powers are most friendly, and when I recently visited the crowned heads of Europe, they paid, not only great attention to my solos, but even Metternich, Wellington and Nesselrode applauded my fantasias, and bowed to my caprices; my ukase or proclamations are only good, showy concert bills; my coups d'etat aim solely at getting from Italy the best catgut strings; I am at war with nobody; and if some jealous, silly, or misguided artists, try to annoy me, these are less dangerous than Messrs. Kossuth, Mazzini & Co. The bands I conduct, (with no other weapon than a small baton,) do no harm; and if they commit murder, it is only on the musical works they are attacking. To resume, sir," continued Bocsha, "you see that I am a happy monarch, and would prove a blockhead to wish to change my situation in this world."

PRIM PEOPLE. There are a set of people whom I cannot bear—the pinks of fashionable propriety whose every word is practice and whose every movement is unexceptionable; but who, though well versed in all the categories of polite behavior, have not a particle of soul or cordiality about them. We allow that their manners may be abundantly correct. There may be elegance in every gesture, and gracefulness in every position, not a smile out of place, and not a step that would not bear the measurement of the severest scrutiny. This is all very fine; but what I want is the heart and the gaety of social intercourse; the frankness that speaks ease and animation; the eye that speaks affability to all, that chases timidity from every bosom, and tells every man in the company to be confident and happy. This is what I conceive to be the virtue of the text, and not the sickening formality of those who walk by rule, and would reduce the whole of human life to a wire-bound system of misery and constraint. Dr. Chalmers.

SPRING—the season of buds and birds, and flowers—is with us again. The common begins to put on its garniture of green. Nature never changes the form or hue of its adornment—thereby setting a beautiful example to the rest of her sex. We clip the following from one of the papers, and give it as a pretty offering to the genial season:

SPRING.

A bursting into greenness,
Awakened as from sleep,
A twitter and a warble
That makes the pulses leap;
A sense of renovation,
Of freshness and of health,
A casting off of stolid fear,
A carelessness of wealth.

A watching as in childhood,
For the flowers that one by one
Open their golden petals
To woo the gitful sun;
A gush, a flash, a gurgle,
A wish to shout and sing,
As filled with hope and gladness,
We hail the vernal Spring.

RALEIGH, WEDNESDAY, APRIL 27, 1853.

THE RAILROAD JUBILEE.

The Norfolk, Portsmouth, and Baltimore papers contain stirring accounts of the recent Rail Road celebration. There was "a good time" from first to last. Early on Wednesday morning the cars left this place for Portsmouth, filled with our guests and with a large number of our citizens. They arrived about half past six P. M., and at eight the visitors were escorted to Oxford Hall, where the citizens of Portsmouth had prepared a magnificent banquet. Every luxury and delicacy of the season was provided in profusion. After doing ample justice to the viands, (says the Baltimore Sun) the regular toasts were announced as follows:

REGULAR TOASTS.

1st. The Union of the States of America.—The only true gem in the civilized casket. [Music—Star-Spangled Banner.]

2d. North Carolina.—The home of honor, chivalry, hospitality, and accomplished statesmanship. Her daughters are unsurpassed, her sons noble, and her patriotism unquestionable. [Music—The Old North State.]

The toast was eloquently responded to by Major Clarke, Comptroller of the State of North Carolina, who gave as a sentiment:

The Enterprise of Portsmouth and Norfolk.—Like faith, it can remove mountains.

3d. The State of Maryland.—Her sons, now present from the Monumental City, are fit and noble representatives from that enterprising State.—[Music.]

This toast was responded to by John B. Seidenstricker, Esq., President of the Second Branch of the City Council of Baltimore, who made a short speech, which was exceedingly pertinent and well delivered, being listened to with great attention and loudly applauded.

4th. Virginia.—She is too old not to be remembered, and must never be forgotten.—[Music—Carry me back to Old Virginia.]

5th. Our Guest, Ex-President Tyler.—A worthy and chivalrous son of the Old Dominion.

The Ex-President had entered the room but a few minutes previously, and was received with hearty cheers and much enthusiasm. He responded to the toast in a felicitous manner, earnestly urging Virginians to secure the trade thrown into their hands, and not let it pass to other and more northern States, and concluded with the following sentiment:

Science and Enterprise.—Science to plan, and enterprise to successfully carry out what she undertakes. [Music—President's March."]

6th. The City of Raleigh.—Her shady groves, by the consummation of the great work we to-night commemorate, have obtained just what they needed—the salt atmosphere of the seaboard. [Music.]

7th. Raleigh, Portsmouth, Norfolk, and Baltimore. The slanders of disaffection are now silenced by the conviviality presented around the festive board. [Music—"Landlord, fill the Flowing Bowl."]

8th. The President of the Raleigh and Gaston Railroad.—Under his auspices, decrepit railroads become highways of pleasure and profit.

Which was eloquently responded to by Mr. Branch, the President of the Raleigh and Gaston Railroad. [Music.]

9th. The President of the Seaboard and Roanoke Railroad.—His untiring energy and perseverance have accomplished the long wished for union of the City of Oaks with the Mart of Cypress.

Dr. Collins made a brief response to the sentiment.

10th. The Chesapeake Steam Packet Company.—Noted for its enterprise, we greet its representatives here with pleasure.

Moor N. Falls, Esq., President of the Company, excused himself from making a speech, expressing his thanks for the compliment.

11th. Our Guests.—Whether Marylanders, Carolinians or Virginians—Portsmouth greets them all as brothers.

Captain R. R. Prentis, being called for, responded, and gave as a sentiment:

The Memory of Judge Gaston, of North Carolina.

12th. The Press.—Steam may drive the world, but the Press must herald it.

Mr. Starke, of the Nansemond Enquirer, responded on the part of the press, in a very happy manner.

13th. Norfolk and Portsmouth.—Let us shake hands.

14th Ocean Steam Navigation.—With its assistance our most sanguine hopes will be fully realized.

James Lovegrove, Esq., of Baltimore, being called for, responded to this sentiment in his usual happy manner, and gave as a sentiment:

Public Schools and Internal Improvements.—Both the safe-guard of our Republic.

15th. Woman.—Without her, steam is worthless, and railroads are but connecting links with misery and solitude.

Jeffrey M. Griffith, Esq., of Baltimore, was called for, and addressed the company in a half serious, half humorous strain for a few minutes, admitting that cupid had severely wounded him while in the "City of Oaks."

Major Clarke, of Raleigh, and M. F. Conway, Esq., of Baltimore, took the strong side also, and women were conclusively shown to be no less than angels on earth.

Mr. Griffith, in concluding his remarks, offered the following sentiment:

The Ladies of Baltimore, Portsmouth, and Raleigh.—Their fascination and beauty are only rivalled in their attachment to Union."

On Thursday morning Mr. Falls, President of the Baltimore Steam Packet Company had the steamer "North Carolina" placed at the disposal of all the guests, and the citizens of Norfolk and Portsmouth, for a visit to Old Point Comfort and Fortress Monroe. Some one thousand, comprising many ladies, availed themselves of the opportunity, and visited this delightful and interesting locality. After spending an hour looking at the "sights," they returned on board and were conveyed back to their starting place, all highly gratified. The Marine Band of the U. S. Ship Pennsylvania accompanied the party and enlivened the occasion.

The Baltimoreans and others who went over to Norfolk in the North Carolina were received at the wharf, at 2 o'clock, by the corporation officers and the Cadets of the Norfolk Military Academy, and escorted into the city, to the public square, where the young soldiers exhibited a very creditable specimen of their drilling. The Baltimoreans proceeded to the National Hotel, whence, at 4 o'clock, they marched in a body to Ashland Hall, where the Norfolk banquet was in readiness.

The Argus says:

"Precisely at the hour of 4 o'clock yesterday, the portals of our ancient hall were thrown wide as hinges permitted, and North Carolina, Virginia and Maryland were invited to eat, drink and be merry, for it was the wedding dinner of the seaboard with the metropolis of the Old North State. Francis Mallory, Esq., presided, assisted by Tazewell Taylor, L. H. Chandler, Wm. D. Roberts, W. D. Cooke, J. T. Allyn, J. E. Barry, Esqrs.

Upon the announcement of the first regular toast, Mr. Turner, of North Carolina, spoke in response, urging upon the part of Virginia and North Carolina a cultivation of the spirit of amity, friendship and reciprocity. The sentiment is as follows:

1st. North Carolina and Virginia. Twin sisters in interest and in honor; develope only their reepective resources, and a splendid destiny awaits them.

To which Mr. Tyler responded in a strain felicitous and entertaining. As he resumed his seat amid the irrepressible outburst of popular applause, the President, Dr. Mallory, proposed the following toast:

Ex-President Tyler—Our neighbor and our friend.

The second regular toast was as follows:

2d. Raleigh and Norfolk the Tirmini of the Road—Having fulfilled the saying "that extremes meet," may their intercourse be lasting and harmonious.

The remaining regular toasts were then announced:

3rd. The long desired connexion of our City with the Counties of North Carolina—With its consummation, may there be a general rally and wake up of the sister arts of Agriculture and Commerce.

4th. Halifax, Warren, Franklin, Granville, and Northampton—Names already illustrious as Statesmen and as Warriors—may they hereafter be identified with the paramount interests of Agriculture and Commerce.

5th. The County of Edgecomb—Foremost in Patriotism, and illustrious as the birth place of the lamented Wilson—may her enterprise identify her name like his own with the glory and renown of North Carolina.

6th. Internal Improvements—As they develope the resources of the States, so will they prove the Iron Bands of their Union.

7th. The South—Foremost in the achievement of Political, may she be as energetic in regaining her Commercial Independence.

8th. The Productions of North Carolina—A Macon and a Gaston—Naval Stores and Naval Secretaries—Lovely Daughters and Gallant Sons. They alike contribute to the glory and happiness of our Common Country.

9th. Maryland—The glorious achievements of her "Revolutionary line" gave prestige of her present greatness and renown.

10th. Woman—The real inspirer of our best exertions, the true source of our wealth and happiness—Her smile is more powerful than the sword of the hero,—her voice more charming than the eloquence of orators—her love, the Koh-i-noor in the jewelled coronet of our hopes. The strains of poesy are alone worthy to celebrate it.

O, the voice of Woman's love!
What a bosom-stirring word!
Was a sweeter ever uttered,
Was a dearer ever heard
Than woman's love.

'Tis the gem of beauty's birth.
It competes with joys above,
What were angels upon earth,
If without woman's love—
Sweet woman's love.

VOLUNTEER TOASTS.

A sentiment from Mr. Gales, of the Raleigh Register, supported by a handsome address, was proposed in this language:

The Borough of Norfolk—Ancient in her history, but now full and fresh in vigor and enterprise.

Major Ramsay, of the U. S. Army, in response to a sentiment complimentary to the Army and Navy, gave

The Alliance by Railroads—The only entangling alliance to which there is no constitutional objection.

Dr. Collins gave

The Port of Norfolk—Let her merchants be energetic, and she will be the great commercial emporium of the South.

Dr. Mallory gave

The British Consul, G. P. R. James—the worthy representative of a great and friendly power.

Mr. James being loudly called for, acknowledged the compliment in a courteous and becoming manner.

Major Hinton of North Carolina gave

Virginia and North Carolina—Side by side in the Revolutionary struggles, their interests demand that they should be united in improvement."

Speeches, in response to sentiments, were made by Maj. Hinton, Mr. Husted, Mr. Gales, and Maj. Clarke, of North Carolina.

On Thursday night (says the Weekly Post, whose Editors were present,) in the parlor of the National Hotel, a magnificent cake was presented to the ladies from Raleigh. Mr. Irwin made a graceful address on the occasion, which was responded to in a very appropriate manner by S. W. Whiting, Esq., of Raleigh, on behalf of the ladies. We understand that the ladies are indebted for this handsome present to the suggestion of Mr. Cherry, of Norfolk. The cake was placed in the cars, in charge of a committee and reached Raleigh safely last night."

The Post adds:

"Our party returned on Friday, in fine health and spirits, enraptured with their excursion. And here we take occasion to return our hearty thanks to Dr. Collins, the enterprising and obliging President of that fine road, the Seaboard and Roanoke, and to L. O'B. Branch, Esq., President of the Raleigh and Gaston Railroad, for their kind attention, both going and coming. The ladies were also much indebted to Mr. Ball, agent of the Seaboard and Roanoke Road, who had charge of their car."

Our readers must excuse the scanty dimensions of this number of the News. We sent to Baltimore for paper, as we thought to insure its arrival in time, but it has failed to come to hand. More recently we have sent to two different points for paper near home, from one of which we can neither hear from the money enclosed, nor the paper. This is very vexatious, but we trust it will not occur often, if ever again.

Newbern News.

Ah! let us hasten the completion of our great R. Road, and we shall hear no more such complaints. The West can furnish the East with excellent paper as well as fine potatoes, flour and pork. There are two paper mills in the vicinity of Lincolnton, one at Shelby, another at Salem, and still another near Raleigh. They all produce good paper, and we believe cheaper than it can be bought at the North. Moreover, they are remarkably prompt in their attention to orders. Salisbury Watchman.

There is also a paper-mill near Fayetteville, David Murphy, Esq., proprietor, which turns out an excellent article. The Raleigh Mill is doing a very fine business. We learn that both these Mills are frequently in receipt of more orders than they can fill. Manteo has recently been sending large lots of the article to New York City, at remunerating prices. We are printing the Supreme Court Reports upon paper from this Mill, and we expect to present to the profession in the course of a few weeks, quite a handsome job.

HEALTH OF THE PRESIDENT. The Union states that the rumors of the failing health of President Pierce are not only unfounded, but that it has decidedly improved since the inauguration. His habits of method give him leisure for the exercise necessary to sustain his health. The Union announces that the President will receive visitors on business on Tuesday, Thursday, and Saturday, between the hours of twelve and two o'clock.

☞ Gov. Cobb has written a letter of some length advising a re-union of the Democratic party of Georgia. Gov. Cobb had no slight agency in severing the party in that State, and it is well that he is disposed to repair the injury as far as possible. If our friends in that State do not work in the approaching campaign, as well as re-unite their forces, the Hon. A. H. Stevens will be elected Governor. Mr. Toombs has already got his reward, and Stevens is waiting for his.

☞ Vice President King, it is stated, owned an estate of 2,000 acres of rich land in Dallas Co. Alabama, with 150 slaves. It is also stated that he has left the bulk of his property to the poorest of his relatives, though all are comfortably provided for.

☞ Concord Presbytery, says the Carolina Watchman, commenced holding its semi-annual sessions at Thyatira Church, in Rowan, on the 21st.

MR. JOHN KERR.

The Greensborough Patriot is authorized to announce John Kerr, of Caswell, a candidate for Congress in the fifth District, composed of the counties of Person, Caswell, Alamance, Chatham, Randolph, Guilford, Moore and Montgomery. The Patriot says it is understood that Mr. Morehead declines a canvass.

We regret this determination on the part of Mr. Kerr, because we hoped he might be induced by his "numerous friends" to stand again for Governor. We should like to get just one more clip at him. We entertain no ill feeling towards him—we would not, if we could, pluck a single hair from his venerable head; but then we strengthened our political acquaintance with him under such pleasant circumstances during the late campaign, that we are reluctant to give him up.

The difference between John Kerr's and Henry W. Miller's treatment by the "great Whig party" is about this: Mr. Kerr has been favored, and flattered, and opportunities have been afforded him for going up in the world political, but, somehow or other, luck has been against him; whereas Mr. Miller, who has worked for his party for years with both tongue and pen, has been neglected, walked over, Raynerized, and then, when disposed to complain, commanded by some of the Whig press to hold his peace.

But this is not the only difference: Mr. Miller is, by any number of degrees, a taller man intellectually than Mr. Kerr, and this fact makes the injustice referred to the more palpable.

The Patriot makes the following strong demonstration in Mr. Kerr's favor:

"While we express no preference, as public journalists, if there are other good whig aspirants in the District, we may state the fact so familiar to all, that no man has stood by his colors more devotedly or done more active service for his party than Mr. Kerr. We think it probable that his political friends in the District will take this occasion, for once, to express effectively their grateful feelings towards him."

The Patriot expresses no preference, but deals only in cold "probabilities."

We think it "probable" that the Hon. James Turner Morehead will become seriously disgruntled at this condition of things. [The Patriot will excuse us for using a Virginia—disgruntled—word.] It may be possible, but cannot be "probable," that that interesting young gentleman has waxed tired of Congressional display; and we "draw" this inference from the fact that he made no farewell speech at the close of the last Congress. This, therefore, constitutes another reason why we regret Mr. Kerr's determination to be a candidate. Our regrets are doubled—we shall lose both Kerr and Morehead—Kerr here, and Morehead there; and, what is more afflicting, Congress has lost the farewell speech.

MINISTER TO CENTRAL AMERICA.

The President has appointed the Hon. Solon Borland, of Askansas, to be envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary of the United States to Central America. We concur with the Washington Union that "the qualities of industry, energy, intelligence, and devotion to the public service, which Mr. Borland has so conspicuously manifested, both in the army and the Senate, give assurance that the delicate interests intrusted to his charge in his new and responsible position will be guarded and maintained with fidelity and ability."

Central Americn consists of the States of San Salvador, Honduras, and Nicaragua. It occupies nearly all the narrow tract of country between the northern and southern divisions of the western continent. It was formerly a colony of Spain, and known as the "Captain-Generalcy of Guatimala.'

Mr. Borland's mission is a highly important one. It will be his duty, under the instructions of his government, to meet the pretensions of Great Britain in Nicaragua, and to keep a watchful eye upon the insidious encroachments of that power on American soil. We have no doubt he will prove himself fully equal to the responsibilities devolved upon him.

MR. EDWARD'S ADDRESS.

Our thanks are due to the Hon. W. N. Edwards, of Warren, for a copy of his Address "to his constituents, the Freemen of Warren County."

This Address is in the nature of a defence by Mr. Edwards of his course in relation to Free Suffrage. We have read it with attention, and regret to have to say we find it entirely unsatisfactory. It is ingeniously written, however, and bears evidence in its style and grasp of the author's well known ability. We expect to examine and reply to it in detail, and we shall do so in a spirit of fairness.

By the way, it is addressed to the "freemen of Warren County." Mr. Edwards must have meant to say, freeholders. In this State, a man who is not a freeholder—that is, who does not own fifty acres of land—finds when he asks to be allowed to vote in the Senatorial box, that so far as that branch of the Assembly is concerned, he is not a freeman. There is some little difference, therefore, between a freeholder and a non-freeholder.

COPPER MINING.

The Asheville News learns that new discoveries of Copper Mines in Cherokee County have been made recently, not far from Murphy, which are said to be very rich. The News says great excitement prevails in Chorokee in consequence of these discoverics,

The Greensborough Patriot says:

"The "copper fever" prevails extensively and intensely throughout the old gold mining region of Guilford and Randolph. Lands to a large amount, in the neighborhood of the Fentress Mine, have recently changed hands and gone into the possession of capitalists at prices which a year or two ago the proprietors never dreamed of. The veins already operated upon to an extent sufficient for a thorough test give promise of exhaustless abundance of the mineral.

The "North Carolina Copper Company," (Stith, Camman & Co., with others,) operating at the Fentress Mine, we learn own about one hundred acres. And the "Mineral Company of New York," in which Messrs. Smith and Colby are concerned, we understand have purchased nearly seven hundred acres, on the north, east and southwest of the above Mine, and doubtless intersected with the same rich veins."

☞ We are requested to state that Seaton Gales, Esq., will deliver an address to the students of the Castalia High School, on the 27th of May next—the day of their Annual Exhibition in Elocution.

☞ The Norfolk Argus, in its account of the recent celebration, says:

"When within ten miles of the city of Raleigh we were met by the committee of invitation, who kindly tendered the hospitalities of the metropolis to the President of the Seaboard Road (to whom too much praise cannot be given for the admirable arrangement of the excursion) and his guests. Taking the committee on board, a few stokes of our Herculean engine brought us in sight of the capital of the Old North State, and our arrival was announced by the booming of artillery and the deafening shouts of the assemblage congregated to greet us. On arriving, Mayor Haywood welcomed us to the hospitalities of the city in a neat and handsome address, which was responded to by Joseph T. Allyn, Esq., on the part of the Norfolk Council, the Rev. Mr. Hume, in behalf of the town of Portsmouth, and Mr. J. B. Siedenstricker, as the head of the City Council of Baltimore. At the conclusion of the ceremonies of reception, the company were conducted by the committee to Yarbrough's Hotel, and from thence to the several hotels of the city.

At 8 o'clock, by invitation, the company entered the spacious dining saloon of the Yarbrough, and sat down to a splendid supper prepared for the occasion in the taste and bounty of "mine host," which was presided over by Ex-Governor Manly with dignity and ease, assisted by Hon. John H. Bryan, Hon. Kenneth Rayner, L. O'B. Branch, C. L. Hinton and W. D. Haywood, Esq'rs. When all had evinced their satisfaction of the discussion of the "creature comforts," the first regular toast was announced, and then commenced the "feast of reason and the flow of soul" in good earnest. The compliment to our glorious old mother was received with unbounded applause, and was responded to by the venerable Ex-President Tyler in a most happy and felicitous manner. North Carolina received the next shot, and like a true soldier, His Excellency Gov. Reid stood up nobly in her cause. Other distinguished gentlemen took the field in response to complimentary sentiments, and at 11 o'clock the company dispersed, impressed with the truth that it is good for brethren to meet together. The whole affair was an honor to the city and a credit to all concerned in it."

The Norfolk Herald says:

"At the supper, which was prepared in the best style, the guests, numerous as they were, were comfortably seated, and did ample justice to the bountiful entertainment. The supper was set in the spacious hall of the new hotel now in the process of construction, and which, when completed according to the plan adopted, will be an ornament to the city, and worthy of the capital of a great State; indeed it may vie with the best hotels of the South. It is kept by Mr. Yarbrough, a very gentlemanly host, whose courteous manners and long experience well qualifies him for the station.

Raleigh is a beautiful city, containing 5000 inhabitants, but covering a space nearly as large as Norfolk, owing to the sparseness of the private residences. The streets are lined on both sides with elms and oaks, and most of the private dwellings are embosomed in groves of the latter—so that the city well realised the idea of the rus in urbe. When spring has clothed it in its mantle of green, we can imagine no more refreshing and balmy spot, on a sultry summer's day, than Raleigh. The Capitol shows magnificently in the centre of the city, with four avenues leading to it, the Southern one leading to the Governor's House, which closes the view from it at a distance of half a mile.

But as the train was to leave at half past 7 the next morning, there was no time for extended observation; and after all, what were the sights to be seen about the city, compared with the noble hospitality and generous sensibilities of its people, the evidences of which were strikingly manifested on this occasion, and have constituted a theme of glowing eulogy among the visitors from this city. We trust that the intercommunication between Norfolk and the interior of North Carolina thus happily commenced through the agency of iron bands will be productive of as happy a union in the bonds of a common feeling and a common interest."

As it is with some a matter of conjecture as to the succession, in consequence of the death of the Vice President we remark no provision is made, as none is necessary, in such an event. The duties of the Vice President are limited to presiding over the deliberations of the Senate. In his absence, or upon his death, the President pro tem. of that body, who is elected by the Senators, takes his place. Mr. Atchison of Missouri, is now President pro tem., but does not assume the title of the Vice President. In case of the death of both the President and Vice President of the United States, the President of the Senate would become President of the United States, until an election could be held according to the provisions of the act of Congress of March 2, 1792.

THE IRISH EXODUS. A letter received in New York, dated Parsontown, Ireland, March 26, says:

"All Ireland is in motion. I left Dublin for this place eighteen days ago. On my route I met the people in gangs of 40 to 60, in all directions, wending their way to the coast to emigrate for America. The emigration is terrible. If it continues a few years longer at this rate, Old Ireland will be depopulated. Our best farmers and mechanics, servants and cidevant soldiers, and policemen out of employ, have all taken the 'emigration fever,' and are preparing to emigrate. Our wonder here is, how you find employ for all these people."

The National Intelligencer states that stone is now being hewn by steam in that city at a yard near the Capitol. It is supposed that it will greatly cheapen the cost of hewn stone for building. Unless pressed brick are greatly cheapened by some invention yet to be announced, it conjectures that in competition with this cheaply hewed stone they must go to the rear.

ATTEMPTED SUICIDE OF ARTHUR SPRING. We learn that Arthur Spring, the murderer, has attempted to commit suicide by sleeping with a quantity of tobacco under each arm. The doctor tells us that the use of the weed in this manner is likely to cause death in a short time. Phila. Sun.

RAILROAD LOANS. Three important loans, it is said, have been concluded in London—one for the Louisville and Nashville road, for $4,00,000; one for the Cincinnati and St. Louis road of $2,700,000, and one for another western road of $2,000,000.

RESPECT TO THE LATE VICE PRESIDENT KING.

As soon as the melancholy intelligence received by telegraph of the decease of the Vice President could be ascertained to be authentic, the subjoined orders were issued by the President and the Executive Departments, and furnished for publication. The whole country will sympathize with the sentiments expressed in these testimonials of respect for the station, character, and public services of the eminent and lamented statesman whose earthly career has thus been closed in the fulness of years and of honors.

By the President of the United States.

The President has, with deep sorrow, received information that the Vice President of the United States, WILLIAM R. KING, died, on the 18th instant, at his residence in Alabama.

In testimony of respect for eminent station, exalted character, and, higher and above all station, for a career of public service and devotion to this Union, which for duration and usefulness is almost without a parallel in the history of the republic, the labors of the various departments will be suspended.

The Secretaries of War and Navy will issue orders that appropriate military and naval honors be rendered to one to whom such a tribute will not be formal, but heartfelt from a people the deceased has so faithfully served.

The public offices will be closed to-morrow, and badges of mourning be placed on the Executive Mansion and all the executive departments at Washington.

$50 REWARD!

A FREE negro, by the name of Jones Mitchel, alias Jones Kiff, broke from the Jail of Orange county, on the 9th day of March instant. Said boy is a mulatto, stout built, about five feet seven or eight inches high, quick spoken and intelligent, about 30 years of age, had on, when he broke from said jail, a wool hat, a black blanket sack or over coat. He, I understand, was bound, when a boy, to a gentleman at Raleigh by the name of John H. Christopher. The above reward will be given for his apprehension and delivery to me at this place.

RICHARD M. JONES, Sheriff.

NOVELTY WORKS

WEST ST., RALEIGH, NORTH-CAROLINA,

SILAS BURNS, PROPRIETOR,

BUILDER OF

Steam Engines & General Machinist.

THE above establishment has been in successful operation about one year, and has turned out some of the best STEAM ENGINES and SAW MILLS that have ever operated in this or any other State.

Orders are solicited for Steam Engines and Saw Mills, Mill Gearing and Machinery of every discription to be completed during the Summer and Fall. The improved condition of the Raleigh and Gaston Rail Road will enable me to fill with dispatch and punctuality all orders after the 1st of July.

The following certificate will show the character of the work executed at the above Works:

AUBRY, Cumberland, May 15, 1852.

Mr. SILAS BURNS,

Dear Sir: Our Engine and Mills, made at your shops, have been at work nearly two months, and fully meet our expectations. The ENGINE, as to FINISH and STRENGTH, PERFORMANCE and DURABILITY, is inferior to none in the State of the same class made here or elsewhere. The MILLS run with a smoothness and speed truly astonishing. In ordinary sawing we cut in a common sized log, 1 foot in 3⅞ seconds or 16 feet per minute. We have run, however, through an 18 feet log in 32 seconds or at the rate of 33 feet per minute, by running to the top speed we fully believe we can cut 40 feet per minute. The only objection we have heard urged is, it takes two many hands to haul up logs and carry away lumber. Yours, &c.,

JONES & BARBEE.

GREENSBOROUGH Mutual Life Insurance & Trust Co'y.

THIS Company, as its name indicates, is upon the mutual principle, and embraces two distinct departments, to wit: Life Insurance and Trust departments. This attractive combination offers to Policy holders double the ordinary security, without destroying their right to a full participation in the entire profits of the Company. Premiums will be received, in cash, either annually, semi-annually, or quarterly, as may be agreed upon at the time the Policy is issued.

In the TRUST DEPARTMENT, or Deposit System, the payments made to the Company are entirely optional with the Depositor, as regards the amount and the time at which they are made. A party may pay in as much or as little, (not less than one dollar,) and as often as may be convenient for him, without any obligation upon him to continue his payments—and may withdraw them at his pleasure.

So that, on the plan of this Company, there is created at one and the same time an assurance payable at death—a fund available in sickness—and a provision for old age.

TO MERCHANTS--IMPORTANT AND TRUE. The fact, that merchants can supply their wants in their home markets, and thus save the trouble and expense of a northern trip, being fully established, the subscribers, in anticipation of a large demand for their popular Ready Made Clothing, have manufactured an unusually large stock, which, they may safely say, has never been surpassed, if it has been equalled, in the southern market.

Encouraged by the very liberal patronage hitherto received, and with largely increased facilities, we are determined to keep pace with the onward spirit of the age, and to use every honorable effort to deserve our share of the "public distribution." Merchants visiting Petersburg, whether dealing in Clothing or not, are invited to visit our WHOLESALE ROOMS, now stocked with every variety of Clothing, of our own manufacture, the most modern styles, and at New York prices.

"Eagle Hotel," Chapel Hill, for Sale

THE Proprietress of this well known and profitable establishment, having realized a sufficient income to warrant her in resuming the quiet of a private life, offers to the public generally the opportunity of bidding for its advantages.

The citizens of the State are so well acquainted with the advantages of its position, that but few remarks are necessary to complete their information.

The Hotel itself possesses all the requirments of room and comfort, which its purchasers can desire. It has capacity for the accommodation of one hundred and fifty boarders, and the recent and rapid growth of the University, adjacent, makes it an easy matterto possess such or even a greater number of students.

In addition to this, the frequent travel through Chapel Hill gives the Hotel, (being the only one in the place) a transient custom equal to any in the State.

The lots and stables adjoining are extensive and commodious, and the country-market supplies abundantly and on profitable terms much of its provisions.

The terms of sale require one third of the price to be paid on taking possession. A note, with safe security and time of payment suited to the convenience of the purchaser, are the reasonable demands for the remainder.

If further information be desired concerning the inducements to purchase, the President of the University or any other resident of the village, will furnish it.

Possession can be obtained at any time, after the 1st of May. Apply to ANNE S. HILLIARD.

Quinton Utley's Tooth-Ache Drops.

FOR THE CURE OF THE TOOTHACHE.

One of the Greatest Discoveries of the 19th Century!

FROM the numerous applications I have had for the above preparation, for the last few months, the uniform success which has attended its use, its salutary effects, its power to give immediate relief in the severest cases of Toothache, I have been induced to offer it to those who may be afflicted; with the utmost confidence in its virtue, and the full belief that it will subdue and give entire relief to the severest toothache without the slightest injury to the tooth. I have got (and can get,) numerous testimonials of its efficacy—some from distinguished gentlemen, and all from as reliable persons as are in the State, a publication of which I deem unnecessary at this time, as one of these Drops when tried in an aching tooth will be worth more to the manufacturer and the patient, than all the certificates from great men that could be procured.

The preparation is known only to myself. Every phial is carefully put up by my own hands in the City of Raleigh and labelled with directions for use, and may be found at IRA BECKWITH'S Store, on Fayetteville St. a few doors North of the Yarbrough House, and opposite Lawrence's Hotel, where it will be constantly kept for sale either by the wholesale or retail. Also for sale by the retail at Jone's Drug Store, Sycamore street, Petersburg, Va., and at Andrew Bett's Store, Wake County, N. C. Retail price 50 cts. per Bottle—liberal deduction made when taken by the quantity.

To all who may have the toothache—try it, and then it will need no puffing.

All orders from a distance promptly attended to by Mr. Beckwith or myself.

QUINTON UTLEY.
